MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 26.

A NICE GIRL.-Though that class of girls is by no means extinct, still they are not so numerous as might be wished. There is nothing half so sweet in life, half so beautiful or delightful, or so lovable as a nice girl. Not a pretty or dashing girl, but a nice girl. One of those levely, lively, good hearted, sweet-faced, amiable, neat, natty, domestic creatures met within the sphere of "home," diffusing around the influence of her goodness, like the essence

A nice girl is not a languishing beauty, dawdling on a sofa, and discussing the last novel or opera, or the giraffe-like creatures sweeping majestically through the drawing-room. The nice girl may not even play or dance well, and knows nothing about using her eyes or coquetting with a fan. She never languishes, she is too active. She is not given to sensation novels, she is too busy. In public she is not in front showing her shoulders; she sits quiet and unobtrusive at the back of the crowd most likely. In fact it is not often we dicover her. Home is her place.

She rises betimes and superintends the morning meal? Who makes the toats and the tea, and buttons the boy's shirts, and waters the flowers, and feeds the chickens, and brightens up the parlor and sittingroom. Is it the languisher, or the giraffe, or the elegant," not a bit of it : it's the nice young girl.

Her maiden toilett is made in the shortest possible time, yet how charmingly it is done, and how elegant her neat dress and collar! Not presenting her cheek or brow like "a fine girl," but an audible smack which says plainly. "I love you ever so much." If you covet anything it's one of the nice young girl's kisses.

Breakfast over, down in the kitcken to see about dinner, and all day long she is up and down, always cheerful and light-hearted. She never coases to be active and useful until the day is gone, when she will polka with the boys, or read, sing old songs and play old tunes to her father and mother for hours together, she is a perfect treasure is the nice girl. When sickness comes it is she who attends with unwearying patience in the sick chamber. There is no risk, no fatigue that she will not undergo; no sacrifice that she will not make. She is all love, all devotion. I have often thought it would be happiness to be ill, to be watched by such loving eyes and tended by such a fair

One of the most strongly marked characteristies of a "nice girl" is tidiness and simplicity of dress. She is invariably associated in my mind with a high frock, plain collar, and the neat-est of nice ribbons, bound with the modest litthe brooch in the world. I never knew a "nice girl" who displayed a profusion of rings and bracelets or who wore low dresses or a splendid

I say again, there is nothing in the world half so beautiful half so intrinsically good as a "nice girl." She is the sweetest flower in the path of life. There are others far more stately, far more gorgeous, but these we merely admire as we go by. It is where the daisy grows that we like to rest.
